COURSE DESCRIPTION

In this course students will be introduced to a range of topics and concepts explored within communication studies. Beginning with a look at communication as a direct consequence of face-to-face human interaction, students will also consider the nature of the spoken language and non-verbal communication. The technological extensions of language and culture will also be examined.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Upon successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

- Understand how and why human society requires communication.
- Explore various theories of communication.
- Discover connections of the theory to daily interactions.
- Discuss possible applications of what we learn to future examinations of communications studies.
